Canada's Basketball team in Olympics tournament

by Joe Sargis

Tokyo, (UPI)—Don't be surprised if Canada's basketball team in the 1984 Olympic Games rewrites the "Rags to Riches" story.

When the Canadian Squad beat Cuba in the qualifying series on the final day at Yokohama Sunday, they earned a berth in the Olympic series proper.

What is more important, though, is that they earned the respect of their own Olympic committee.

The Canadian Olympic Committee had refused to pay the team's way to the games on the grounds that most of the members of the committee just didn't think the team was good enough to compete against such basketball powers as Olympic Champion United States, Russia, world champion Brazil and Mexico.

However, the team—the augmented Toronto Dow-Kings—bought differently and decided to make the trip to Yokohama anyway. They chipped in for their expenses and enlisted the help of Canadian businessmen to raise the $15,000 needed for the journey.

Before departing for Japan, the team said last and received a commitment from the C.O.A. that it would pick up the tab if the team qualified for the Olympics proper.

In the 16-nation qualifying tourney the Dow-Kings won seven of their nine games and finished third behind Mexico and Australia. That qualified them for the games starting this Saturday and reimbursement of their money.

"It's been a heck of a fight but we made it," said a jubilant coach Doug Healey of Port Credit, Ont. "You can't imagine what this meant to us."

Healey, however, has no illusions about his team's chances in the 16-nation Olympic basketball tournament. "Without a doubt, this is the best team we've ever sent to the Olympics or world championships," Healey said. "But it might be asking for too much of us to beat out the United States and Russia. We just aren't in their league."

Still Healey, who caught lightning in the bottle once and hopefully thinks he can do it again, left the door open to a possible upset.

"This is a tough tournament, make no mistake about it," he explained, "but you never can tell what can happen. A key injury could upset the whole form sheet."

Healey, who wasn't thinking in terms of his own team.

"We have a well-balanced club with guys who can do everything," he said, "and unlike other teams in the tourney we don't have to depend on one or two men to do the job."

He listed his big men—Al Birtles of Summerland, B.C., Roly Goldring of Scarborough, Ont., Keith Hartley and Jim McGuire of Toronto and John MacLean of Montreal—as the key to Canada's chances in the tourney.

"They have balled us out before and they could do it again," Healey said.

Healey said that a pair of "midnets"—S. Reuben Richman of Willowdale, clothes dryer, air conditioners. Some of them probably spend more in a year on cigarettes than the bonds would cost."

"I do not criticize their spending. I merely point out that they will put up money for things they want—in fact, will go into debt. And in this nation the art of making people want things, including what they don't need, has been developed to the point where it dominates our economy, if not our culture."

"This talent, the best that can be had must be recruited to make people want pollution control."

The matter is serious, the matter is urgent. If we are not to find ourselves in a few years with "water, water, everywhere—but not a drop to drink".

Gambling

Some play for gain; to pass time others play for nothing; both play the fool, I say. Not one nor coin I'll lose, or idly spend. Who gets by play, proves loser in the end. —Hearth

Biggest man in the Canadian Army
On Friday night, Lowell Thomas, who surpasses one of the most widely known of American newsmen, mentioned the 45th Battery and one individual in it very prominently in his daily broadcast.

Lowell Thomas told of the "biggest man in the Canadian Army," R. D. "Moore" Thomas for whom, he said, it was necessary to remake two uniforms to supply with regulation army dress. He said he was a huge man and was considered the biggest man in the Canadian army.

R. D. Russell is a resident of Dorset where, The Post is informed, he operates a tourist lodge. He is better than six feet high but it is his breadth that is remarkable. The chest measurements of the man are said to be 47 inches.

Reborn man in navy
Robert J. Smith, a Reabro boy who was a radio officer on a British ship for two years has recently written home telling his parents he has joined the British Navy.

McNaughton to command 1st Division
Major-General G. L. McNaughton, C.B., C.M.G., D.S.O., one of the outstanding military men of the British Empire, has been appointed to command the first Canadian division and will take it to the fighting front when Britain gives the word.

Council Briefs . . .

Town Clerk Bud Bates read a resolution to council regarding the Victoria County Community Planning Conference to be held at Cameron Hall, Tuesday, October 13th from 8:00 to 10:00 p.m. and October 14th 9:30 a.m. to 4:00 p.m.

Permission was granted to the Royal Canadian Legion to use the Victoria County Hall, Tuesday, October 13th from 6th and 7th and a house to house canvass for poppy sales. The council, Tuesday, 7th, at 10:00 a.m. and 12 gauge shot guns. Special event for deer rifles, standing deer targets. Prizes, turkey and one choice beef. Off hand shooting. Ask for Don Lee. (22815)

After the mayor read a letter addressed to him by the Lake Ontario Development Association soliciting the support of member municipalities in protesting the proposed removal of the daytime service between Peterboro and Toronto by the C.P.R., Rev. Moore moved that council record its objection to the removal of the services as this would deprive Lindsay residents of this convenience. Deputy-reverend Finney seconded the motion. Councillor Neil pointed out that a Toronto-Ontario night train does provide service at less convenient hours.

Former councillor Joe Hutton approached council as a committee of one on behalf of 115 residents on Russell Street appealing for better lighting on Russell street. He said that he had received numerous calls from residents and had referred them to the lighting chairman but this does not get any results. He said that when he called the lighting chairman, Mr. Neil's reply was "I have known about this for years".

Lighting chairman Les Neil replied "As far as citizen's remarks are concerned I am answer them right now. There is only one light on Russell between Victoria Avenue and Albert St. Russell street lighting is on the 1964 programme and will be carried out as soon as the Hydro has the time. It has first priority after Lindsay street between Russell and Kent which has been started. The situation is quite true and Mr. Hutton also knew about it for years".

Board of Works chairman Reeve Moore told council that the work on the sewers for the Wellington St. bridge replacement will be done this winter. Elimination of the log and the bridge approaches will be started next spring. He pointed out that the Department of Highways will allow no subgrading for paving carried out after October 15th. He said that it is hoped to have the preliminary work done by the end of the year.

Welfare chairman John Kincaid came in for considerable praise for the work he and his committee has completed re: rehabilitation to break the routine of month after month hand-outs."

"THE POST" LINDSAY, ONTARIO, WEDNESDAY, OCTOBER 27th, 1964

QUEEN TOURS PEI PROVINCIAL BUILDING TODAY

Charlottetown, P.E.I. (UPI) — Queen Elizabeth, who seems to have everyone on her side except the weatherman, got the final day of her Prince Edward Island visit underway today with a brief look at the room where the first lines of Canadian confederation were drawn a century ago. The British monarch, whose schedule for the day had a tinge of picture book royalty was in top regal form again as she toured province buildings and its historic houses of confederation chamber and then appeared on a balcony to 1,000 Islanders gathered out-knowledge the cheers of some side.

The opening ceremonies at our airport the Saturday, mark an official milestone in the progress of our community. Our mode of transportation is changing rapidly to air travel, and we must take steps that our town is keeping in step with the times, not to mention the facilities provided for our young people to train in aviation right here in Lindsay.

As has already been shown to all who live in this community, airport facilities are a major factor in attracting new industry here, and will be of great importance in the years to come. I hope as many of you as possible can be at the Airport Saturday to witness the official opening ceremonies and fly-in.

say in Toronto or Peterboro, language to denote some of the danger is not what you see of intoxication. In plain may be dangerous to cause in an English, it means that the accident but rather what the driver is well on the way to be other driver is going to do to long drunk. And apparently you in. In nearly every report the law deals with the very highly and the driver is impaired mentally. A fine of $100 or maybe liquor in his dollars or a month or two in jail. The word "impaired" in jail. My own opinion is that more or less a new word in our day one found under the induence of liquor and driving. This is part of the for each life that is sacrificed, necessarily the roads are up the hills and then down into the valley and around the hills, and drivers are unable to see far ahead. A good driver must be forever watchful for what is approaching and he can't afford to in any degree, under the influence of liquor and danger.

by "the observer"

There appears a heading in a weekly paper in large black letters that struck me very forcibly as it scanned over the contents of the "Million Dollar" Halliburton Resort Assured as Dyart Goes "Well!" The paper gives a record, for and against, of the vote in most of the larger hotels and while the hosts have a very substantial majority one must conclude that the dyrs were in there fighting all the way. The record states "It has been reported that the resort plant being promoted by a Buffalo, N.Y., syndicate is the largest municipal facilities year around for the family".

So this Million Dollar resort is the prize Dyart is paying for the privilege of having liquor served to any and all whose thirst need slacking. Dyart is the largest municipality in Halliburton County and within its boundaries are some very fine people. I do not know how long Dyart has been "dry" but no doubt our good Conservative government in Toronto had their eyes on the situation and gave all their support to the vote. Now for One Million Dollars they can have Cocktail Lounges and Dining Lounges. So far everything is in their plan. However the people of Dyart and Halliburton will have to remember they will have to pay the price in many a gritty heartbeat for the privilege of being able to serve liquor within their boundaries.

For the past fifteen years, Ontario under Conservative law has gone from local option to local option. Gradually inch by inch clean Ontario, the liquor interests have gradually moved in, until today they control the Government of our province both Liberal and Conservative. They have even silenced the voice of our Women's Christian Temperance Unions whose voice was treated with due respect in every church. Gone too are the days of the Temperance League that no doubt kept many young lads straight when Ontario had open bars.

MALABAR COAST, India: This region of southwest India stretches from Goa to Cape Comorin at the peninsula's tip. 500 miles long, it is a narrow coastal plain, fringed by hundreds of miles of lagoons. Vegetation abounds; mangoes make the coast a fertile rural growing region. Crowded into the area are some 16,000,000 persons, many of ancient Dravidian stock with castes, customs and traditions of their own. Pictured above is an elephant dance featured in a Malabar celebration of the gathings of the monsoons along dramatic, jaggedly craggy yakkat hills and colorful, plume-filled fairs.

The role of the nursing home in providing professional rehabilitation and general services was also emphasized by Dr. Keith Stuart, Senior Medical Specialist of the Ontario Department of Public Welfare.

Mr. Roger Shute, an official of the Ontario Hospital Association, stated his belief that the recent decision to admit nursing homes into Associate Membership of the hospital organization would lead to a new era of co-operation in the interest of the public.

Our Heritage: Let's We Forget

By R. G. Lovell

Between 70 and 75 percent of the people in Canada today have no knowledge of the historical or cultural roots of the First World War. Between 40 and 42 percent have no actual acquaintance with personal recollections of World War I.

The average age of First War veterans is 73 and that of Second War veterans 49. Between 1961 and 1963, 184,000 Canadian war veterans died. In a few years there will be no First War Veterans left. In a few years, at the time, too, there will be no more Second War veterans. Of 75 percent of the present population of Canada, only 10 percent of the population of World War I, then they cannot remember those who died in 1914-18, and if 42 percent of our people were born within of World War II they cannot remember those who fought and died in that conflict.

To the young generations, and to future generations, our country's war, to return, will be a distant memory. To them, they personally, have neither direct knowledge nor actual experience. To them, the men of the Canadian Expeditionary Force, who died in action, will be unknown, for they cannot, of course, remember the men as they were. They can only, the names of those men are chiselled in cold, unresponsive stone, embossed on tablets of brass, or written on the walls of the shrines of honour built across the length and breadth of the country—but they are names of men and not of men.

This is not inevitable, as the two of all life. Nevertheless, it is the responsibility of those who are much for humanity, for freedom, for right, they ought to be remembered—the men of the old C.E.F. and of the old A.F.V.

In 1914-18 the men of the old C.E.F. wrote the name of Canada in blood on the scroll of history. They were the first of our future generations might know their valor. From Ypres to Tonn it was written, bold and plain, in the blood of the men of the old C.E.F. They were called, but they finished up as one united Canadian Corps under the command of the Canadian Corps Commander, Sir Arthur Currie. During those years Canada's nationhood became a reality, and the nation of the future was born. The Peace Treaty of Versailles was concluded.

From 1939 to 1945 the men of the Second World War fought, together with thousands of other young Canadians, again wrote the name of Canada in blood on the scroll of history. In the air, at sea, on the beaches of Sicily, up the leg of Italy, and across the North Atlantic, through Northwest Europe they fought and died, until the enemy was again driven back across the Rhine and the North Atlantic. The men of the Second World War were called, but they finished up as one united Canadian Corps under the command of the Canadian Corps Commander, Sir Arthur Currie. During those years Canada's nationhood became a reality, and the nation of the future was born. The Peace Treaty of Versailles was concluded.

Too often the amenities and privileges of life are taken for granted as in the material herbage of the modern world. Too often it is forgotten that they have come to us through the hardships, the pain, the sweat, the blood, the anguish and grief, the loneliness, the deprivations, the pain, the suffering, the courage in the face of adversity, and the efforts and valour of their forebears.

This heritage of ours we hold only in trust for a generation to come. It is our bounden duty to keep it clean and unpolluted, unimpaired and unimpaired, but the reality of the generations bliger, better and nobler in each single part because we, as Canadians, have been privileged to pass this way.

A Few Minutes ...

This newspaper has said it before, and it says it again: for a compassionate community there is no sadder news than the death by fire of children in the home. And the shadow deepens when the headline reads: "We left them only a few minutes ..."

For the stricken family the shadow of the wailing negro will last a lifetime.

Today starts Fire Prevention Week in Canada. During this time citizens are urged by fire officials and volunteers to fire drills for children at school and special instruction on the subject of fire prevention. Authorities through news media try to impress on citizens the national importance of protecting life, property and material resources from fire.

Lindsay has suffered much in the past from major fires, and fire prevention should be of major concern to everyone.

There will always be destructive fires but the more people there are who are vigilant the fewer lives will be lost and the less property destroyed.

This evening the Lindsay fire department opens its doors to the public from 7 to 9:30 and citizens are invited to see the various types of fire engines and watch demonstrations. Make a point of going to the fire hall this evening.

Disappearing Copy Typist

The first shot which might ring the death knell of millions of copy typists through the world was fired in the U.K. this week when the powerful British Broadcasting Corporation (BBC) announced that it had ordered a compact office copier small enough to fit on an ordinary office desk.

At the time, the BBC was the last of the successful radio stations to use the internationally-successful Rank Xerox 814 office copier. Since it was introduced in 1957, it has soared to $14 million in sales in the seven years since it was introduced. The BBC is now the only office copier.

A £1 million factory has been built in Bournemouth in Dorset, England, to produce the new mini-copier which will take the place of carbon paper and the copy typist.

Remind go to dogs!

Yodel! The fox has gone to the dogs.

For Rear, once the darling of the society set and immortalized forever in several of Angus's fables, seems destined for a future of running for dog life just a few steps ahead of a pack of yapping hounds.

Andrew Stewart, chief of the Fur Section, Canada Department of Agriculture, commenting on the latest Fur Commission report by the International Fur Association, pointed out that the beginning of the end for the wily fox.

The immediate post war years also saw a decline in the fur trade. The most popular fur. Despite man's efforts to stimulate nature by producing fur coats, the fur trade is still in a state of decline. The fur trade is still in a state of decline.

But 1944 was the industry's last good year. Fashions changed and the fur trade fell into disrepute. The fur trade was no longer the fashion and the fur trade was no longer the fashion.

In Mr. Stewart's opinion there will always be some demand for good quality fur coats, but the reality is that fur is not likely to return unless fashion dictates restore the fur to its old place.

Half-leading restrictions lifted from some roads

October 26, 1984
The Lindsay Post, William St. N.

Dear Sir:-
I am sure your readers would be interested to learn that half-leading restrictions will be removed from the following highways of our area in future:

Highway No. 35, from Lindsay to Norland; Highway No.

36, from Hwy No. 7 (Lindsay) to Boboyagong; Highway No. 35A from Hwy. 35 to Fenelon Falls; Highway No. 121 from Hwy. 35 to Fenelon Falls.

I trust that the removal of these restrictions will be of benefit to our area especially in the view of recent developments in the railway at Coburn.

Yours very truly,
R. Glen Hodgson.

FENELON FALLS MUSEUM HOUSE WEALTH OF HISTORICAL DISPLAYS

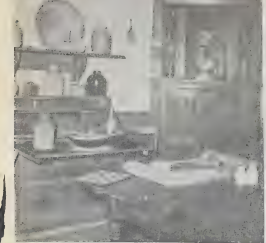

"Maryboro Lodge," the name of the building occupied by the Fenelon Falls Museum was completed in 1837 by James Wallis, who came to Montreal from Maryboro, C.E. Ireland, in 1832. The following year he and Robert Jameson purchased extensive lands in the area and in partnership, in 1834, they built a sawmill and later a grist-mill which formed the nucleus of the present village of Fenelon Falls. Mr. Wallis donated land for the community's first church, in 1835 and personally conducted services until the arrival of a clergyman in 1835. He was also a justice of the peace and commanded the local militia during the 1837 Rebellion.

Fenelon Falls Historical Society Museum was officially opened on June 8th, 1963, and a recent visit by "The Post" revealed that already it contains a wealth of historically significant displays. The Museum is ideally located in a house built by the founder of Fenelon Falls, the late James Wallace. The site was purchased by the Historical Society and turned over to the Village Council to make it eligible for grant purposes. The building known as Maryboro Lodge is a hewn log structure protected from the elements by frame siding. The roof is though presently covered by asphalt shingles, will soon be re-roofed with cedar shingles. This retaining its vintage appearance.

The Museum will remain open for public inspection until Thanksgiving, by which time the 1964 attendance as indicated by those who have signed the guest book will very probably exceed the 3,000 mark. Attendance last year totalled 2300, but curator E. C. Bieley told "The Post" that possibly ten percent of the visitors do not sign the book.

Several rooms in the house are furnished in period furniture and on display are items dating back to 1711. One item of particular interest is a group of sketches by Anne Langton done in and around Fenelon Falls in the late 1820's.

Another display of interest is a collection of Indian arrowheads, spear heads and hand re-coated with cedar shingles. These tools dug up by Fenelon Falls high school students under the direction of their teacher Bill Bain.

THREE-CAR CRASH CAUSES ESTIMATED $2,000 DAMAGE

Two people were injured and crashed head-on into a north-bound vehicle driven by Donald Raymond Dewey of Oshawa.

Police said that Quibell sustained a fractured jaw and possible head injuries. A passenger in the Dewey vehicle, Elaine Barnshaw of Aspley, sustained bruises to her left knee. Mr. Quibell was admitted to Lindsay Hospital, where he is in satisfactory condition, said hospital authorities.

Lindsay Police Constable Jack Hestley investigated charges are pending.

Police officer may replace signals at Kent and Lindsay

Police Chief John Hunter said police officers might replace the traffic lights at the intersection of Kent and Lindsay Streets. Chief Hunter said over 80 per cent of the vehicles travelling through this intersection are making right of left turns. The ten second advance green flashing light for cars proceeding north on Lindsay Street is very necessary to give vehicles a chance to turn left onto Kent Street, but this ten second light gives southbound cars a chance to proceed through the intersection. The chief said the complete traffic signal system is a 60 second cycle.

When this is broken down into two green lights to two orange caution lights and the ten second advance green light, the time is very short for cars to advance on a green light. This shortened time coupled with the fact many drivers wait for the green light to make a right-hand turn onto Kent St. West makes it virtually impossible for southbound cars to proceed through the intersection, said Chief Hunter.

The chief observed, the same drivers proceed right on a red light at other intersections after stopping, but for some unknown reason they often wait for a green light before making a turn at this intersection. This tends to slow the movements of the southbound vehicles to a considerable degree.

Several suggestions will be implemented on a trial basis at this intersection, added the police chief, "including the turning off of the traffic lights and having an officer direct traffic."

RCAP plans expected for official opening

Doug Watson, chairman of the planning committee for the airport opening, next week, said plans are progressing very favorably for the official opening. At present, he said, it appears likely that two air force planes will be on hand for the opening. One, a Caribon Transport with twin engines and a 90 foot wing spread will be on the field for public inspection. He said that the plane is capable of carrying three tons, and will demonstrate short-land take-off and landing as well as making a high speed fly past. A search and rescue Otter is also expected and will be on display.

Among the new planes to be on display, Mr. Watson said confirmation has been received that there will be two Cessnas on the field. Guest personnel will also include the first home to aircraft customer to use the Lindsay facilities.

Mr. G. M. Roberts, president of Walter Montgomery of Toronto, Connecticut, and D. Robson, president of Mount Hope Machinery Co., from Taunton, Massachusetts.

STOP!... killing yourself

By Peter J. Steinhorn, M.D., F.A.C.P.

PHOBIA SUPPERS

When will the self-appointed brave people of this world develop an understanding and sympathy for their more fearful brethren? When will they come to realize that the anxious frightened person doesn't necessarily have a broad yellow streak down his back? It is especially difficult for the scared one when members of their own family look down their noses at them. For example:

Dear Dr. Steinhorn: I have a problem concerning water and very high bridges over water. I am very much afraid of them and I will not cross over on them.

I've felt this way as long as I can remember. I have been accused of being yellow and worse. I have tried and tried. When I get close to such a bridge I shiver all over. When I look at the vast body of water with nothing around it like trees, shrubs or other things, I feel like I'm going to be swallowed up by water.

My husband accuses me of ruining his life because I won't take him to some kind of anxiety state. He goes in a boat or go over the high bridges. He is very unhappy over it and he makes it miserable for me. Is there any advice you can give? Mrs. N.

PHOBIA NO JOKE

Comment: Your husband is not alone in realizing that the anxious frightened person doesn't necessarily have a broad yellow streak down his back? It is especially difficult for the scared one when members of their own family look down their noses at them. For example:

Dear Dr. Steinhorn: I have a problem concerning water and very high bridges over water. I am very much afraid of them and I will not cross over on them.

I've felt this way as long as I can remember. I have been accused of being yellow and worse. I have tried and tried. When I get close to such a bridge I shiver all over. When I look at the vast body of water with nothing around it like trees, shrubs or other things, I feel like I'm going to be swallowed up by water.

My husband accuses me of ruining his life because I won't take him to some kind of anxiety state. He will realize that yours are not silly fears and that you deserve sympathy rather than impatience. Dear Dr. Steinhorn: Our grandson who is almost 8 has been stuttering for two years. Instead of getting better it is much worse. The child ashamed and is begging for help but the pediatrician says, "Do Nothing. He'll grow out of it." What do you think? Mrs. W.

CHANGE DOCTORS

Comment: As for immediate consultation with a pediatric speech expert. If your pediatrician doesn't agree, here's what I'd do if he were my grandson: I'd ask him to refer the boy to another physician.

Dear Dr. Steinhorn: Will thinking a 3-year-old child of the head beating the thumb and middle finger to discipline him affect her physical and mental health? Do you consider that cruel and inhuman treatment for loving parents to administer? Mrs. S.

Comment: Why don't the thumping? I hope it isn't you. My advice is that the thumper please!

ANYONE WHOSE WINE WITH TRANQUILIZERS

"When you write you stand up to be shot at."

What writer said that I've forgotten. But he's correct. One satisfaction about being criticized is at least you know how to keep noticing I'm still around.

Well it seems that three of my colleagues have differed with me lately about a column I did recently on the harmful effects of eating cheese while taking certain kinds of tranquilizer medicines. Two thought I treated the problem too lightly, and the third went so far as to send me copies of the original British article intimating that I had better keep up with the medical literature.

I am going to answer all three, and others who may think likewise, because I think it is important to non-medical readers.

In medicine, there is sometimes a tendency to go overboard on certain theories. On my, doesn't the pendulum swing. But I refuse to be stamped into I am reasonably certain.

I repeat. I do not advise all patients on tranquilizers to stop eating cheese or taking wine. Although it may be true that some patients get severe hyaline and other reactions to this combination, it does not apply to all. I don't believe in covering all patients with the same all-inclusive, cumbersome blanket. If your doctor says, "Better not take these with your tranquilizers, perhaps he has good reason to forbid it." But if you have been taking tranquilizers and eating cheese without any bad effects, I'd want to find definite evidence before I would derive you of cheese.

OVERBOARD WITH ACTH

Let's review a few instances where doctors "went overboard" too enthusiastically and later calmed down. If those my doctor friends who are now as blipped on the cheese tranquilizer complex will read on.

Not too long ago cortisone and ACTH were fervently embraced as the cure-all for severe arthritis. (Remember the movies of such patients, involuntarily for years in their chairs who were later shown talking and dancing after taking these medicines?) Any doctor who had the gall to say "Let's wait a while and see," was looked upon as an odd fuddy-duddy. What happened? In many cases we now know that aspirin was as effective.

Remember cholesterol? How can you forget it? For a while I was considered to be a strict teetotal with atherosclerosis. Ask investigators what they think of now. They will answer that they don't really know. They are not sure. (If you were a doubter a few years ago, you were worse than a fuddy-duddy.)

How about the use of anti-coagulants (blood thinners) like heparin and coumatin for months and years after a patient had an attack of coronary thrombosis? If you even suggested that some patients might be better off without their use, doctors would send you the president of all the fuddy-duddies. (Ask heart specialists about the new, many,

"This is a Mary Greore wine jug," said Ed Harding as he displayed the beautiful piece of glassware. To his left is a large piece of Savres China made in France in 1762.

The original Mary's Chair of Yorkton, which is now called Leaside, will be donated back to the town. Edward Harding, a local antique dealer who is in possession of the chair, told "The Post" he has restored the valuable piece of furniture and would now like to donate it back to the town of Leaside.

Antiques don't have to be expensive, said "Irish" Ed Harding, who recently moved to Lindsay. One can spend less than a dollar or over $500 for relics in good condition. Mr. Harding, after opening 15 years in the restaurant and antique businesses in Minden, has moved into the house formerly occupied by Colonel Shields, on the what was a part of the Canadian Arsenal property.

Mr. Harding has moved a quantity of antiques into the stately white house on the corner of Lindsay and Mary Sts. and said his shop will be open by Monday. Mr. Harding said anyone is invited to browse about his display without feeling obliged to buy anything. Mr. Harding, who came originally from Ireland, returned to Europe every year to buy objects for his fine collection. Before coming to Canada, Mr. Harding spent time in the Irish Police Force, The British Army and the Merchant Navy.

HELP FOR ALCOHOLIC THROUGH "AL-ANON FAMILY GROUP"

My mail is more than sprinkled with letters from far-flung and hopeless victims whose better (I) halves are caught in the strong vice of chronic alcoholism. One of these, you may recall, was a woman who called herself "Screaming Mimi". She knew not what to do to turn or what to do to climb out of the black pit which was her daily existence. This may sound like "reducing an emotion" but I assure you that the tone of the letters received by these despairing people is not one what exaggerated.

I received today a letter from an Arizona reader who offers some help to all who suffer indirectly from chronic alcoholism in the family:

Dear Dr. Steiner, I am enclosing a letter of hope and encouragement for the wife of an alcoholic who signed her self, "Another Screaming Mimi". I am also enclosing some leaflets from an organization called "Al-Anon Family Group". We are an auxiliary of

SPASTIC COLON BOTH SIMPLE AND COMPLEX

Dear Dr. Steinhorn: How can one tell if he has a spastic colon? And what is there to do for it?—Mrs. G.

Comment: I hope you haven't been trying to make the diagnosis yourself. It's difficult enough as it is for the doctor to make. And the treatment can be stubbornly resistant, too. In a general way, however, here are some facts that may interest you and your readers.

Spastic colon is really a functional colitis. This means that there haven't been changes in the wall of the colon like ulceration and chronic infection, nor excess drinking and smoking. Nevertheless, as the word "spastic" implies, the irritable colon can bunch up and cause a lot of discomfort. In addition to pain in the abdomen, there may be distention, constipation or diarrhea, nausea, vomiting and belching are other symptoms not unknown to the patient. In other words when the colon "spasms" it can cause an awful lot of discomfort.

Your doctor will use X-rays liquor in any amount.

to help make the diagnosis. He will find that the small bowel is hyperactive (working too hard) for the condition in the large bowel. A barium enema examination will show abnormal action in the colon (lower bowel).

When you say, "What is there to do for it?" you are pre-supposing that we know what's bad for the condition in the first place. For example, many patients are edgy and nervous. In fact, some require psychotherapy before they improve. Others do well with simple medication such as cooked milk toast and weak tranquilizers and being given a program for living in less water between meals helps many patients. As the attack subsides, variety of food is increased and gradually brought back to normal.

Still there are dietary restrictions. You may have to eat from "roughage" for pastries and uncooked fruits or only a few weeks or for the rest of your life. For example, some or all of the following foods may have to be excluded: beans may play the devil with you off your list permanently or at least, until your colon colon suddenly behaves again; parsnips, raw vegetables like cabbage, broccoli, turnips, lettuce, celery, radishes, cucumber, corn, Nuts and bran.

Spasms and uncooked fruits may also be on the forbidden list for some. Pork, chicken, candy and cake and baked goods may play the devil with others colon.

So there you have it, Mrs. G. Spastic colon can be simple or complex; both in diagnosis and treatment. Don't tutor, celery, radishes, cucumber to handle it yourself.

Fifty-seven years a barber—57 years then a friend of man. A thumb nail tribute to the late Marshall (Mike) Stephens is in order because of his long and successful profession as a barber. He was a man of interest in fraternal matters of importance and because of his fine contribution to sporting done in Lindsay.

For many years Marshall Stephens was associated with C. B. (Bert) Naylor who was an immaculate barber, kept a hair shop and trained his associates well. The Stephens barber shop was located in the same stand immediately east of the Claxton store, which was formerly the Simpson Hotel. It was a place for friends to gather and many a young man received friendly advice and many of their ventures "watched" the Stephens shop to thank the proprietor for giving them their first start up the ladder of success.

From year to year former citizens when returning home found themselves back in a big white and black swing chairs. The later Marshall Stephens had a very big memory and he was adept at recalling town happenings of years ago.

Marshall Stephens had a devoted bet for Oddfellows and entered the fraternity when a young man. He loved the ritual and he loved to exemplify the motto of the thrice in his everyday life. He worked faithfully and loyalty and was honoured by passing through the various "chairs" and offices completing fifty years of service a year ago. During his 100% career he was elevated to the highest of the five in the District when he visited all the Lodges in the District and beyond in the call of duty. For years the late Marshall Stephens had charge of the I.O.O.F. wheel chairs and he also was a key figure in social events at the Odd-Fellow's hall. It was a prime official when the Lindsay Lodge presented the love of Lindsay with a beautiful May's chain of office.

For a long period the late Mr. Stephens was one of Lindsay's key citizens interested in sport. He was the manager of different hockey teams and at the time he was generous with his time and his energy as well as with his money. He will be remembered by many players and hockey fans as a faithful official timekeeper at the end of the new hockey rink.

His love for sport brought him to Lindsay to the Lindsay Bowling Club where he served as President and also took charge of the Stephens Tournament, a yearly event. As further evidence of his interest in community work the late Mr. Stephens was for a number of years a member of the Board of Health and in later years was Chairman of the Board. He was interested in being a good member and consequently devoted many extra hours to the successful operation of the Board.

The popularity of the late Marshall Stephens, as well as the high respect in which he was held was manifested by the very large attendance of Oddfellows and Members of the Rebekah Society at a beautiful memorial service held in the Mackey Funeral Chapel.

WOMAN TO WOMAN

PATRICIA MCCORMACK

New York (UPI) — "What you are speaking so loudly I can't hear what you say."

Ralph Waldo Emerson said that a long time ago. Through the years it's been shortened to — actions speak louder than words.

Talk the long version — or the short one, if you're the parent of a teenager. And think about it, please A. D. Buchmuller, executive director of the Child Study Association of America.

He guarantees that the way to get better understanding and less nagging, hit-and-pull, and other warlike tensions between teen-agers and their parents.

Regardless of how much you preach you see, your teen-agers to a significant extent mirror your code of conduct, values, beliefs.

Take a boy called Peter Buchmuller, in his plea for a "Teen-age code of conduct for parents" in the current PTA magazine. Indicates that "The axiom observed with material possessions, and his parents cannot understand why."

Buchmuller reported: "Sure I'll go to college, but what I really really fear is a $50,000-a-year job when I get out. Peter tells his parents that Buchmuller says that aim is not so strange when one knows that Peter's mother and father have themselves yearned for, and over emphasized the importance of getting a head."

"And why," he asks, "To live in a penthouse apartment, drive a luxury car, wear a color television set, travel first class."

Parents of teen-agers, according to Buchmuller, ought to have taken over greater and more urgent meaning, rather than being behind the times. The place to start is with a re-examination of your code of values, he suggested, saying: "Unless the code is concrete, it is evident to your children, these are words without content."

Begin by examining whether you not only toward children and young people but also toward other adults.

"What code of values do we live by, not just give up service to," Buchmuller said.

"We know only too well that moral laxity and failure of compassion exist. We know that many of us have a fear of becoming involved in crucial matters and some would just as soon our idealistic youth would stay out of troubled areas."

"We know also that unless things of the mind are visible in our homes, it will avail us little to pretend (to the children) that these are important life."

Buchmuller also urged parents of teen-agers to ask themselves the following questions:

— How well do we display a genuine sense of humor, an ability to laugh with, not at, our teen-ager?

— How sincerely do we listen to his or her questions, and how thoughtfully do we attempt to find constructive answers?

How tolerant are we with our adolescent's ideas and opinions when they do not agree with ours?

Does what I do in a given situation tend to help or hinder my adolescent son or daughter in his or her growth toward a healthy maturity?

"You will think of many other questions special to yourselves as well," Buchmuller said.

"A meaningful code of behaviour for parents of adolescents is a continuously developing project."

Leonard Eason appointed to new CN position

Leonard D. Eason, Canadian National Express agent at Lindsay has been appointed terminal freight manager for Lindsay and district, it was announced today by E. G. McEwen, superintendent, express-freight, Rideau Area, Belleville. The move is another step by CN to merge its express department and the local-carload freight services under one central authority.

A native of Peterborough, Mr. Eason joined the CN in 1929 as a porter at Peterborough. In 1946 he was appointed express agent at Hearst, Ont., and served in that capacity at a number of other Ontario points until 1953, when he was named express agent at Lindsay, a position he has held until his recent promotion.

HEARS OF LINDSAY LADY CURTIS

Hears of Lindsay lady Curtis have been addressed this week following the announcement of the passing of Miss Emma Haugh. The late Miss Haugh held the office of President of the Ladies' Club a few years ago and was credited with a very successful record.

Max Haugh was a friend to all, a loyal member who added much to the success of the club during her Presidency.

Canadian Ladies' Curling officials went on a scouting mission early in May to check Halifax, the site of the 1964-65 Dominion Diamond "D" and available accommodation. Both proved satisfactory.

Nothing succeeds like success and following a successful season of curling in 1963-64, Lindsay Lady Curlers are off to another successful start. At an enthusiastic meeting Wednesday the women were informed that there will be a full quota of 20 rinks for the coming season. All of last season's ships will again be seen in action, the additional skip being Iolene Rodman.

B.B.C. — C.B.C.

Thriving relations between the British Broadcasting Corporation and the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation are playing a significant part in keeping people of both countries up-to-date with current events.

In fact this month is a fine example of the two-way co-operation from the British Broadcasting Corporation. The C.B.C. was assisting the B.B.C. in their coverage of the Royal Visit, similar assistance was being given in the past in connection with the C.B.C.'s coverage of the British General Election.

Two-way traffic in television film programmes between the two countries is also noteworthy. During 1963-64, Canada bought a total of 548 B.B.C. TV programmes, representing an increase of 27 per cent over the previous year. Likewise, a number of major C.B.C. films are shown in England, not only with current events.

ably in recent times the prize-winning "Open Grave"—which aroused a much controversy across the Atlantic as here.

The B.B.C. (which inaugurated the world's first regular daily television service, in 1936) now send programmes in well over 100 countries; their studios produce in the region of 3,500 hours of television programme material every year. This, of course, is in addition to their best-sold radio transmission service, which the C.B.C. also takes good use.

Crowning Glory

Long before hair over the eyes became top fashion in 'top circles, some of the best dressed and highest paid in the world were looking at life through a dark fringe. Namely, the much-photographed, Queen Mother, who was crowned guard at Buckingham Palace and St. James's Place in London at Windsor Castle. Tim Matthews, talking in the BBC General Overseas Service programme "Here and Now" about a visit he made to the factory in London's East End where the famous hairpins—called "bushies"—are made, reported that the hair on the skins used had to be at least 3½ inches long "to brush down over the Queen Mother's eyes and down at the back of her neck." Of course, on no account must it be stray.

In the old days the skins used to come from Canada, Matthews said, but those supplies dropped off, and now they all came from Russia. Even so, supplies were limited, and when news came through to London that a consignment of hairpins was on the way there was an "international scramble" to get hold of the best one. London hairpin-makers had such a high standard that even out of a good parcel of skins they threw out about seventy per cent—"which makes hairpin caps an expensive sort of headcovering—about $150 each, wholesale."

Once the skins had been selected, dressed and dyed, said Matthews, each skin was taken to a Dickensian-looking factory where a highly skilled craftsman turned out about a dozen a week, according to the supply of raw skins. "Shapes differ slightly according to whether a hairpin is being made of three parts stitched together. However, it is so rare to get a really perfect piece of skin that, in fact, the average cap may be made up of about thirty different pieces. It is the skill in stitching these together that makes the true craftsman. Once sewn together, the skins are damped with water, blocked, and then mounted on wickerwork frames, like little bicycle baskets, which are hand-made by an old man living somewhere in London. The cap is then trimmed, a leather framework is stitched inside, and they are ready for duty."

Trying on one of these splendid pieces of uniform, Tim Matthews found it very comfortable and much lighter than he had expected, "but the 3½-inch pieces of hair, which, quite properly, drop down over one's eyes, reveal a bright English summer's day to a depressing grey winter's drizzle."

—BBC London Letter

The Flexible View
"To my mind, the important division between people is not between the classical and scientific outlook on life, but between those who have been educated to see the world in terms of the rapidly changing environment, which science is creating, with all its potentialities, and those who are in terms of the static environment, and frozen emotional attitudes of the past."

—Lord Brain

Seed collection

The tree seed collection programme for the province this fall requires the collection of 8,000 bushels of cones. This amount of seed will maintain the supply needed for the production of nursery stock to meet the present demand of public and private land planting and for direct seeding.

The quantities of cones and rough seed required for all six regions is 8,000 bushels, as follows (quantities in bushels):

- White pine 550, red pine 3,000, jack pine 2,400, white spruce 700, black spruce 1,000, red spruce 30, Norway spruce 60, red oak 70, white ash 40, hemlock 100, miscellaneous 100.

Red and jack pine and white and black spruce form the bulk of the seed collection requirements this year. Observations indicate that there is a good possibility that there will be a medium to heavy crop of seeds for these species.

—Dept. of Lands and Forests

Officially it doesn't exist

But this is the most famous single spot not only in London, but in all the C.K. and the Commonwealth, officially does not exist. Its name is not to be found in any street directory, nor is it anyone's address.

This is one of the many interesting facts which can be learned from a recently published book in Britain entitled "The Picture Story of London," and for a visitor to the country it is interesting, something to be taken back home as a reminder of a visit to the C.K. capital.

Piccadilly Circus, usually the scene of festive demonstrations, was originally designed by John Nash (1753-1835), recognized throughout the world as the supreme master of the classical Georgian style of architecture known as Regency. Examples of his work can still be seen at Chester Terrace and Cumberland Terrace as among other places, at Regents Park in London. It was John Nash who introduced the idea of plaster facades into domestic architecture.

Standing Room Only

"It has taken some sapient 'thinking man' if you want to call him that—the best part of half a million years to reach a population of three billion and millions. In forty years we will have doubled that figure and beyond that we go on at an enormous rate of increase. In fact, United Nations experts have predicted that in six centuries there would be one square metre of land for every person on the globe. You can't produce food from one square metre of land, all you can do is bury people vertically... We really need an intelligent approach to the population problem."

—Professor Ritchie Calder of Edinburgh University

On Bites Master

Lewis Burn, Sr., of Beaverton has changed his mind about the gentleness of his favourite cat, Burns, while in his orchard. Burns, a squirrel hunter and called the cat a "red of squirrel nest." When pussy arrived, he tossed the squirrel over the fence and was about to put the cat over when it suddenly turned, and sank its teeth into his thumb, inflicting a painful wound. Needless to say, pussy was forced to forage for her own food in future.

Lindsay girl is avid "Rockhound"

Some of the rocks gathered by Margaret Tripp are displayed at Tripps Marine on the Bobcaygeon Road.

Margaret Tripp holds an Indian skinning knife from her collection.

A Lindsay girl, Margaret Tripp, 14, a student at Central Senior School, has found a hobby that brings the world and some of its history into her home. She is a "Rockhound," that is, she collects rocks.

Mrs. Tripp began picking up pebbles from the beach near her family's cottage when she was about seven years old. The rocks didn't mean much, just interesting shapes and colours but in the last few years she has been drawn into this interesting hobby, mostly through her father's interest and geological knowledge.

Mrs. Tripp has many special items of rock from around the world which she has either picked up herself or someone has given her. In her collection are quartz, silt or black diamond, Brazilian quartz, petrified wood (which she turns to rock through the pressure of the earth). Other forms are diamond and coal, Jasper, Apache tear, African ivory, petrified snails, and purple charlie. She also has an unfinished Indian skinning knife.

To bring out the beauty of rocks they have to be polished. The rocks are tumbled by placing them in a tumbler, a cylindrical device containing gravel, and spun through the gravel, the friction wearing the rock smooth. After the desired shape is acquired the rocks are polished. If one wishes to make a bracelet or necklaces with the rocks they are attached to a chain by a special glue and baked.

A new collector usually has difficulty initially when they try to identify rocks. Rocks can often be determined by "Sorey no Torres".

Four car chain reaction causes $500 damage

A four car collision on Kent Street at 1 p.m. Friday caused $500 damage. Lindsay Police said four cars were proceeding east on Kent Street approaching the intersection of Cambridge Street in a line of heavy traffic. Police said the line stopped, except for the last car which was driven by Roy William Davey, 26, of Oakwood. The Davey, which could not stop in time, hit the rear of the car proceeding, it driven by James Henry Hart, 35, of R13 Woodville. The chain reaction continued. The other two vehicles involved were driven by William P. Neil Nicks, 48, of R12 Lindsay, and Eric C. Patterson, 20, of Lindsay.

Lindsay Police Constable William March investigated.

Cottage fire near Minden $200 damage

Approximately $200 damage was caused to a cottage near Minden on Friday when the chimney caught fire. Minden volunteer firemen rushed to the scene a short while after having caught a house fire in Lutterworth (Lutterworth). The fire was at first reported to see rock displays.

Mrs. Tripp went to a "jam-boree" at Bancroft in August. It was the first "jam-boree" she had been to. She described it as being "something like a fair". Various special items of rock and jewellery were on display and some of the articles could be purchased. Mrs. Tripp said she obtained a necklace from Bancroft, which was made of moonstone.

"Moonstone," she said, "is a white, colored rock and you hold it at certain angles in the light it takes on a bluish tint." She said moonstone is found in the Madawaska Valley.

The "jam-boree" was sponsored by the Bancroft Gem and Mineral Society, of which Mrs. Tripp is a member for rock-collectors.

"I would recommend rock collecting because it is interesting, very inexpensive," said Mrs. Tripp. She said it becomes expensive only if the collector begins to make jewelry, but otherwise all one needs is a backyard full of rocks and a manual to identify them.

Sir Winston Churchill takes absorbing interest in film of "My Early Life"

London, (UPI) — A new interest has entered Sir Winston Churchill's life just in time to help cement the love he feels now that he will no longer be able to attend the House of Commons.

The great statesman—90 years old Nov. 30.—yielded to the pleas of his family against the rigors of a campaign and decided not to be a candidate in the General election Oct. 15 after nearly 64 years in parliament.

This raised a new worry for Lady Churchill. For at Sir Winston's exalted age the desire to live is an extremely good health factor. And his family and friends cast about for ways of keeping him occupied.

At this critical moment along came film writer and producer Carl Foreman with a project that caught Sir Winston's immediate attention. For a number of years a series of screenwriters had tried and failed to produce an acceptable treatment of his life and his first election to parliament—all by the time he was 25.

Watching "The Guns of Navarone" in his private cinema at Chartwell one day Sir Winston asked why the writer of that thriller could not be permitted to try his hand at "My Early Life."

The last time it talked to him about it he said:

"Why does it take you so long? Can't you finish it in three or four months or three months?"

"When I said two years he scoffed: 'You said that long to mount the second front!'"

"He has more money to work with," I reminded him.

"Sir Winston made only two conditions."

"He wants himself played by a British film actor, and I remember where others liked 'High Noon'."

"He also would like to see the finished scenes developed with the finished film, and as they arrive in London he can follow our progress from day to day."

Blind Man's View

"Often the first thing that a complete stranger will ask me is, 'Have you always been like this?' They mean—have you always been blind? I never mind this myself, as at least once a conversation, but I sometimes wonder how his own reaction would be if a stranger came along and asked him, 'Have you always had so little light?'"

"It must be terrible. I think you hold people as marionettes; but there any hope of your getting it back?"

Dr. Donald Liddell speaking in the BBC

Cars, trucks, trains take toll of moose

Every year, moose fall victim not only to the hunter's gun during the hunting season but also to automobiles and trucks on highways and to trains on railway rights-of-way before the hunting season even begins. A great many of these kills occur in June and July when animals come out to the risk-of-way in search of some relief from biting insects.

During the year ending January 1st, 1964, a total of ninety-nine moose were killed by trucks and trains in Ontario, the Fish and Wildlife Branch of the Department of Lands and Forests reports. Cars and trucks accounted for seventy of this total.

It is so common as very likely that the toll somewhat higher than this since some of the train kills are probably not reported to conservation officials of the Department.

The Districts of White River and Geraldton tally the largest number of moose killed with 22 and 17 respectively. Cochrane had fifteen and Sault Ste. Marie ten.

Where possible, the meat which is salvaged from these accidents is given to hospitals or welfare organizations. In a great many instances, however, animals are so badly hurt that they are left to rot. In some cases, the meat of the moose can be salvaged; this applies particularly to train and transport kills.

Tourist Attractions

The Kawartha Lakes Tourist Association (KLTA) reaped the fruits of some of its labours this weekend when bus loads of tourists from Toronto toured the points of interest at Kawartha and enjoyed boat cruises on Capt. Young's craft. The visitors were most impressed with the hospitality and by the scenic beauty of the Kawartha and already two busloads have been booked for next Thanksgiving weekend.

KLTA started working with Oley Travel Bureau in Toronto, who organized this trip, and other travel bureau some in the area, and the association hopes to arrange for regular bus trips during the year, especially in the spring and fall months.

KLTA are to be complimented on their enterprise and energy. Regular busloads of visitors from Toronto and other points, discovering our area will do much to publicize the Kawartha and bring in extra business for our merchants.

Common Habit affects drivers

Three cigarettes, chain-smoked and inhaled, consumed each morning could impair vision in dim light. Drivers should be advised against frequent smoking immediately before or during night driving.

Doctors are warned of the deteriorative effects on the "smoking driver" in an eight-page booklet issued by the Ontario Medical Association dealing with the physical and mental disorders likely to affect a person's ability to drive a motor vehicle safely.

The booklet reveals many dangers previously unknown to the man in the street and goes into details concerning the "irritating driver" also. We are informed for instance that driving deteriorates with an alcohol level as low as 0.05 per cent—the equivalent of two 12 ounce drinks of 2.5% beer, or two 1 ounce drinks of 100 proof spirits up to an hour's drive.

Doctors become involved in issuing licenses when patients consulted them as to their fitness to drive, or when the Department of Transport's medical advisory board requires a fitness report on a patient. Often physicians must decide whether to issue a license temporarily or permanently, because of physical defects or a deteriorating condition.

The booklet was prepared by the OMA's committee on medical aspects of traffic accidents, headed by Dr. Lorne Steward of Cornwall. It can be obtained from the Ontario Medical Association, 244 St. George St., Toronto, Ontario.

Flag committee reach half way mark

Ottawa, (UPI)—The all-party Canadian flag Committee Wednesday held "open house" for newsmen and photographers at the new Parliament building. The committee has reached the halfway mark in their six-week study of the contentious issue.

The committee chose the open door to meet newsmen and photographers on the third floor of the Parliament buildings where 15 meetings have been held. The committee has assigned task in to work out a unanimous, or near unanimous recommendation for a distinctive Canadian flag.

Committee chairman Herman Batten said that the committee has received 3,000 suggestions for consideration, in addition to the 3,000 designs reviewed by the 1946-47 flag committee that settled on the red ensign, bearing a gold maple leaf in place of the Canadian coat of arms, as the best compromise.

"We're now setting a plan for selection," Batten said, "but so far we have not started to limit the designs. We haven't, however, given the old design as much attention as the new designs."

Asked if the committee would be able to complete its study by Dec. 29, Batten said: "I really don't know. We have any choice." He said the committee realizes it has a serious problem with the old flag and is working to find "sincerity and purpose."

Batten, however, declined to say what progress was being made towards a new flag. He said that discussions up to now had been such that "it would be difficult to say." Similarly, he said it was too early to predict whether or not there would be a majority report delivered to the Committee by the end of the year.

The small committee is overwhelmed with flags, flag designs and sketches, ranging from genuine and sincere efforts to achieve a satisfactory national flag, to bitter and cutting ridicule of some persons views on the flag.

One design, based on a tri-colour, based out at the Royal Canadian Legion in Quebec City, has been identified and Quebec City and has a motto "We Want More Beer". Another frame is labelled "Quebec" and bears the motto "We Want More Beer".

While the central frame is marked "Canada", with the motto "We Want More Beer".

The majority of flags are based on a red, white and blue combination, but many would be flag designs have departed drastically from the conventional use to maroons, oranges, yellows, old greens, and grey black.

Some of the more radical designs are Liberal, five Conservatives, and one representative from the New Democratic Party. The committee has its work cut out for itself.

Batten expected the committee to face an even more rigorous scrutiny than the past six-session a week pace, as their deadline moves closer.

The Gradual Dawn

"With every great planacle of discovery, there is a long preliminary process of gathering information, sorting it down a little, and preparing it to be understood. For example, for the law of gravitation, there were first the observations of the motions of the planets, then a certain amount of partial understanding, such as Copernicus' idea that the planets run around the sun, and later Kepler's discovery that they went in ellipses. But the final ultimate law of gravitation requiring all this preliminary joggling around of the data and understanding it partially. In the same way, the future of nuclear energy, the law of nuclear physics, nuclear interaction, is preceded by a partial assimilation of the information that is available so far."

Richard Feynman, professor of theoretical physics in the California Institute of Technology.

Color change not caused by frost!

Whether autumn sees the leaves bursting into kaleidoscopic colour early or late, the background is not what we point out that the change is not caused by frost, a popular misconception. It is a completely natural process, they say, and would occur in the absence of rain, heat, frost or snow. However, any or all of these may conceivably influence the timing and intensity of colour.

"Individual trees are affected by injury or disease either above or below ground, but the best reason why the peak of the fall festival is early this year is the combination of unseasonably cold and insufficient moisture," says Dr. E. W. Nason, a forestry expert. It is usual for leaves to retain their natural shape and freshness, but it is noticeable this year that they are dropping off wither on the trees." —Dept. of Lands and Forests.

BENSON HOTEL HISTORY RECALLED

Top: A view of Kent street with the wreckage of the Benson hotel lying around, and below: a crowd of interested spectators inspect the damage to the Benson Hotel and reported a portion of roof pierced the car in the foreground while the driver was still in it, missing him by inches.

The recent sudden removal of the metal roof sheeling from the present Grand Union Hotel and also a rooming house on the west end of the hotel, brings to mind the big fire of 1938 when the roof was lifted off the Benson House and deposited on cars parked on the south side of Kent street.

The Benson House block was erected following the great conflagration of 1861, when a large portion of Ridout, Kent and William streets was razed to the ground.

History relates that a gentleman named Benson had the hotel his name which was retained during many decades. Many people in Lindsay may recall the name of Miss Teresa Benson, a very accomplished musician, and her sister Mrs. (Dr.) Blanchard.

Information is somewhat vague but it is reported that John Wardrobe ran the hotel for many years, and his son, John Wardrobe, the daughter assumed management. Later Miss Wardrobe

CONTROL WEEDS

AFTER HARVEST

Weed control is a means of increasing the profit derived from a crop. It may be too late now to do anything about this year's crop, but it is the time to plan for next year's.

Ideally we don't want weed plants in the contest, more than weeds going into the soil before the contest in waiting.

Professor G. W. Anderson, Crop Science Department, O.A.C., Guelph. When moist weather and good seed growth occurs during late August and early September farmers have an opportunity to make sure that weeds have little chance to infest next year's crop.

More than one application of 2-4-D is usually needed to kill certain weeds like Bindweed, Plantain, Snow Thistle, and Canada Thistle. A good time to apply a second spray is in the fall when weeds are more susceptible to control.

Another reason for spraying in the fall is that many weeds such as Pepper Grass, Penny Grass, Shepherd's Purse, Prickly and Wild Carrot are just starting to grow. Spraying them at this time will keep them from growing.

MEDICINES AND DRIVING DON'T ALWAYS MIX

Consult your physician about the side effects of any medicine prescribed for you. They may affect your driver's ability. Even certain common over-the-counter medicines, cold tablets and sedatives may dull your reflexes or lessen co-ordination.

Avoid alcoholic drinks while taking medication. The combination of alcohol and medicine might depress the nervous system, slow your reaction time, and do not even take sleeping pills the night before a trip. They may make you feel drowsy the next morning.

YOUR DOCTOR CAN PHONE OR EXAMINE you when you need a medicine. Pick up your prescription if you forget to do so or if you will drive properly with your doctor's prescription. A great many people are not aware of these precautions. They are common sense.

The elevator was handled by a rope and the trucks hoisted the second floor to the large barren sample rooms. Here, Lindsay merchants examined the goods and placed orders for all kinds of goods.

The Hotel Benson has always been in the news, but once in particular in the year 1948 or thereabouts when in a large and rain storm a very large section of the roof was lifted into space and dropped in Kent street, landing on motor cars on the south side of the street. STOP!...killing yourself

BEGINNING OF ANXIETY STATE

How does it begin? Why does anxiety begin? Where does it come from? Such, and many others, are the questions that strike home to the mad, mad, or gradually lose touch with former carefree ways of enjoying the family or often, life. I've often written that the position also requires a great deal of socializing, and apparently "strong-minded" individuals should never laugh derisively at such "weaklings." It is not a matter of strength or weakness of mind as I hope I'll find some guidance to get back upon the right mental trail—Mrs. M.

Comment: The only guidance I can give, not being able to advise specific treatment, is that you find a doctor who will take care of you. Consider this letter:

Dear Dr. Steinhorn: I am a wife who fight chronic anxiety a housewife in my middle 30's (assuming that this is the drug world). Readers may recall children and an above-average that I have often written that husband. For the past month anxiety states sometimes become very nervous a girl with an acute attack of both any trip out of the home, fear and anxiety; at others, shopping, dining out, visits to the doctor can be gradually, if of recreation, social play, mail-line affects those who are appeals, etc. I have no fear of parently happy and haven't a people but, unfortunately, I still worry of world. But that's the story of a fatal visit with what the doctor's for. To determine the underlying cause.

I have fears of weakness and Sometimes it can be found, of fainting. When some events anxiety it can't.

FATH IMPORTANCE

Treatment consists of psychotherapy, encouragement, tranquillizers and, evergreen, and repeated defenses built by patient and doctor against surrender. In some people chronic anxiety lasts only a few weeks and in others the frightening symptoms hold on with bulldog-like vigor for months and years. The main thing is to have faith that you will ultimately overcome it, however discouraged you feel now.

I know, Mrs. M., that you are likely to be disappointed in my guidance. Nevertheless, I can go as far as I can go. You will have to do most of the fighting yourself. Doctors can help just so much. Success or failure depends, in most instances, upon the patient's willingness to get off the floor time and time off the floor time. Sometimes prayer is the only solution.

Dear Dr. Steinhorn: Please couple that dogs and cats may be harmful. They have a four-month-old baby and two dogs and one cat in a small house. The dog licks the child and the cat sleeps close to it on the floor. The mother kisses the dog on the mouth UGH! then the baby—Mrs. C.

"He seems pretty determined."

Comment: I respectfully request that I may be excused from casting a vote. You see, I'm prejudiced. From the first days of my own life I slept, ate and played with my fox terrier Topsy until it died at the age of 14. Never harmed me. Of course, I can't vouch for all pets in all homes. Nevertheless, a child can "catch" more from people in a crowded schoolroom or movie house than from a cat or dog. (Released by the Bell Syndicate Inc.)

Baptists at Reabro observe anniversary

The 100th anniversary of the founding of the Baptist church in the Reabro area was fittingly observed on Sunday, October 4, when Rev. Gordon M. Holmes of Hamilton was the guest speaker at both morning and evening services.

Mr. Holmes was a former beloved pastor of the church for 10 years between 1927 to 1937 and has occupied the pulpit on different occasions in the intervening years.

On Sunday, he was listened to with large interest by the large congregation present on both occasions as he eloquently promised the riches of the Gospel at both services.

The special music for the day was all that could be desired. Three Barker sisters from Peterborough contributed several beautiful numbers sung in 3 part harmony accompanied by a piano-accordion played by one of the girls. The church choir under the direction of Mr. Douglas Burke and Mrs. Gordon Morden, organized sang a well-received selection at each service.

Lovely autumn flowers added to the beauty of the sanctuary.

Friends from Lindsay, Ormiston, Gilmar and Peterborough were most cordially welcomed by the members of the host church.

The treasurer of the church is well pleased with the anniversary offering which exceeds that of former years.

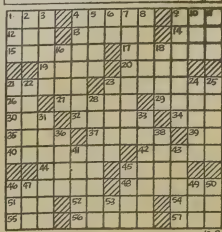

Mr. and Mrs. Holmes were entertained by Deacon and Mrs. W. C. Veale and by Deacon and Mrs. H. G. Burke.

The pastor of the church Rev. J. G. Duncan presided at the evening service.

CANT STAND UP! Amgnering, England—(UPI) George Clark, who has delivered milk to villagers here for 50 years, admitted today that he himself "just can't stand the stuff."

"It really turns my stomach over," Clear said.

Aspirin: Friend to Many, Enemy to a Few
Dear Dr. Steiner: I would be the one. I can't take aspirin. It gives me a terrible heart burn and aggravates my knee. Having arthritis, I know it would help me very much. And not being expensive it would be the answer to my problem. But I have to suffer along with out it. Mrs. O

Comment: Fortunately, as aspirin is enemy only to the few and friend to the many, I have known arthritics whose attacks worsened after aspirin, yet there were others whose attacks it terminated. Some people can take a dozen tablets a day and not feel uncomfortable, while some get heart burn after one tablet. Too many people take it on an empty stomach. And others swallow the tablets without even taking water to wash them down. In such cases it is not surprising that they suffer heartburn and actual small hemorrhages from the wall of the stomach. Especially is this true of ulcer patients. I tell users, when it appears it is time to take a tablet with a glass of water or milk. If possible, after mealtime to help itself if depriving of food.

SPORTSMAN'S DIGEST

When a hunter fires at a deer that disappears, he should try to "track" it down. Though blood may be visible, a wounded animal may travel as far as 100 yards before it lies down. If blood is visible, deer hunters should follow at once to see if the wounded animal is in a wooded area. Dark blood is a sign of a serious wound. If the deer is injured, it may follow over rocks or in the brush.

STOP!... killing yourself

By Peter J. Steinhorn, MD, F.A.C.P.

DRINKER'S SPOUSE ACQUIRES COURAGE IN ALANON GROUPS

Grief-filled letters continue to arrive from readers whose spouses suffer the torments of chronic alcoholism. These unfortunate live in a vacuum of despair. "Escape" They hold out no hope for themselves or their family. Yet, there is hope. Not a solution for every alcohol-impaired home, but of mind: I was the child of an alcoholic, nevertheless. For example, consider some excerpts from a woman in Miami who offers the Al-Anon Group as more than a straw to cling to.

Dear Dr. Steinhorn: There is help for Mrs. X. The Al-Anon Family Group program can and will help this distraught woman to find serenity and a certain peace of mind for herself and her children. Once she becomes aware that her husband's recovery or non-recovery cannot be determined by her, it will of itself relieve her unbearable tension, her sense of guilt and the anguish (or the pain) in 1959 which is part of the life of everyone directly affected by the alcoholic whether it be husband, wife, mother, father, son, daughter, brother, sister, neighbor, friend, acquaintance, or even a stranger.

I need only cite myself as an example of this tragic state of mind: I was the child of an alcoholic during World War II. It was not aware of the alcoholic nature of either my father or my husband. I thought of them as "weaklings" who could control their drinking with "will power."

BITTER, RESENTFUL WIFE
During the first 14 years of my married life I degenerated into a full-blown hypochondriac, a bitter, resentful wife, a self-proclaimed neurotic. I was full of fear. I was even frightened if the telephone rang. If I knew it would be either a bill collector or the police. In 1959 I was introduced to Al-Anon. I developed into a newly sane, rational wife and mother. My husband, wife, mother, father, son, daughter, brother, sister, neighbor, friend, acquaintance, or even a stranger.

myself to get a job — a small one but at least a job.

After my first three years in Al-Anon my husband approached the AA program and today, four years later, is dedicated to a life of helping these unhappy people if they want and seek help. There is hope for Mrs. X. and for all the X's (or Mr.) X's who are searching for it. Al-Anon does not promise them sober mates, riches, new homes or material gain. It does promise that through this way of life they will find the courage to accomplish what they are capable of accomplishing. It does promise a certain serenity and peace of mind. I find it happen over and over again fully.

Seventy-five per cent of the women in my own group have husbands who have not yet attempted to do anything about their drinking or even to admit they have a problem. Perhaps they never will, but these women are aware of this and they keep constantly in their minds the words of our First Step: "Admitted we were powerless over alcohol and that our lives have become unmanageable." This relieves the guilt which torments us at times. In our thoughts at all times too, are the words of the Little Serenity Prayer: "Grant me the serenity to accept the things I cannot change; the courage to change the things I can; and the wisdom to know the difference."

If Mrs. X. wants badly enough to start on a new way of life, Al-Anon can help her. It will pay off in dividends that now seem impossible to her. If she will contact, through AA, any Al-Anon Group in her community, "Serenity" (Released by the Bell Syndicate Inc.)

Town Bus Service

As well as the controversial 2-year term question, taxpayers will vote on a proposal for a flat rate subsidy for the town bus service on this year's ballot papers.

At the present time De Nure Transit provides the town with an efficient bus service, and under the existing by-law receives a subsidy of up to $3,000 a year to cover operating losses.

Mr. DeNure explained to council recently that he would be willing to continue the bus service in town for the next five years and request a flat subsidy of $2,000 a year. In this way his accountant explained, he would be able to save considerably.

Mr. DeNure said council Lindsay would not be paid too big for a bus service to pay its own way. While we do not agree Lindsay will never be big enough to see that time would be many, many years away.

Lindsay needs a town bus service for the convenience of those without cars, for the young, and the old and infirm, and for those who prefer using the bus to trying to find a parking space during the busy hours downtown.

Mr. DeNure has been providing a satisfactory bus service for Lindsay, and his request for a flat $2,000 subsidy instead of a loss subsidy of up to $3,000 as at present will save the town money, and prove more satisfactory for DeNure's and the council.

Lindsay council will still receive a financial statement each year from the bus service and be able to negotiate route changes with Mr. DeNure as deemed necessary.

The new contract presented to the taxpayers for their consideration through a question on the ballot paper is a reasonable one. The town needs the bus service and Mr. DeNure's proposals are satisfactory to our way of thinking.

Madame Vanier wife of Canada's Governor General, unveiled the prize winning statue for the Canadian Save The Children Fund, which stands in a wishing well in the ultra-modern Letham Mews shopping centre on Toronto's fashionable Bloor St. Topping off the fountain after the unveiling are Ontario Labor Minister H. Leslie Kornetree, who represented the Ontario Government, Madame Vanier and designer sculptor Jack Harman of North Vancouver. It is hoped the "art with a purpose" will charm the thousands of visitors to the Letham Mews to contribute to the fund by throwing silver into the fountain or donating at the Save The Children Fund Office located nearby, Ontario Government, Photo.

Poison Gas Threat
The War Office, in a gravely worded communique, tonight warned that recent German claims that Great Britain shipped poison gas to Poland "clearly indicate an intention to use poison gas on the Western Front."

Characterizing Nazi repetition of these claims as "filmy and mendacious," the communique, headed "The Poison Gas Lie," recalled that during the first Great War British charges against the Allies of using poison gas were followed up by its use under orders of the German High Command.

Pleased with 45th Battery
Major-General C. F. Constantine, D.S.O., commanding officer of Military District No. 8, stationed at Kingston made an informal inspection of the local 45th Field Battery yesterday.

Following a tour of the armoured, including an inspection of the barracks, kitchen, and the various messes, General Constantine expressed complete satisfaction of the manner in which the unit is conducting itself. The commanding officer was particularly pleased with the layout of the battery, stating the quarters of 45th Battery were among the best in the district.

Injured when avoiding 5-year-old
Reversing his truck in a desperate attempt to miss a five-year-old boy, Frank Jenkins of Little Britain crashed into hydro pole in village of Little Britain last night. The truck was completely demolished and Jenkins suffered from bruises and severe shock. The truck was approaching the village about 5:15 yesterday afternoon, when the little boy ran from his sidewalk, directly into the path of the oncoming truck. Jenkins reversed his truck to miss the boy and crashed into a culvert from which the vehicle carried a nearby hydro pole.

Marshall Lake met with a serious accident while thrashing at the Hogg and Little farm on Thursday morning last, his hand coming into contact with the knives. His right hand was cut completely through and about half way across. Dr. Cormack was called and his hand dressed. He is recovering nicely, but will be off work for some time.

REPORT FROM OTTAWA

by Russell C. Honey, M.P. — Durham

The Queen could not meet with Canadians personally so she met them through their representatives in Parliament. Accordingly, my wife Anne and I had the privilege on Monday of being presented to her at the residence of Duke of Edinburgh, Her Majesty and Prince Philip.

My talents, if any, do not extend to fashion, particularly to hats. I will merely tell you that the pose, charm and beauty of our Queen would have made any Canadian breast swell with pride. Prime Minister Pearson presented each guest to the Queen. "Mr. Honey represents a Riding in rural Ontario." Each guest then moved on to Prince Philip and thence to Mrs. Pearson who was the fourth and last person in the receiving line.

After receiving the guests the Queen and Prince moved through the guests chatting informally. The Queen smiled easily but one could detect a certain weariness which could be accounted for by the exhausting schedule and the result stemming from the ill-different reception she had received in Quebec City. My wife, Anne and I, having both met her for the first time, have no hesitation in joining with the words of Mr. Pearson, that "she is a great Queen."

Now that the Queen has safely returned to her family it would be helpful for all Canadians to take pause and reflect for a few moments on what has been described as the "trouble" in Quebec.

Out of a total population of 19,000,000 Canadians 3,500,000 live in Quebec. The R.C.M.P. estimate that 400 to 500 people were involved in the demonstrations against the Queen during her visit to Quebec City. The largest group were students. Some of the ringleaders were unshaven agitators who very properly landed in jail. All in all 400 to 500 ill-mannered people attempted to give a bad name to the whole population of the Province of Quebec. Still, the incidents were such that French Canada would do well to make a careful and searching examination of the circumstances which gave cause to happenings surrounding the Queen's visit.

The Queen herself set an example for all Canadians. In an admirable speech delivered in perfect French in the Quebec Legislature she underlined the need for understanding between all Canadians if our nation is to achieve its ultimate goals.

make greatness. Delivering a message for all Canadians the Queen said, "The problems of today will founder in duration if we do not know how to lighten them with fraternity and humanity. Let the dialogue continue and the unity of all men of good faith. True patriotism doesn't exist in an understanding of the patriotism of others."

"I hope," continued the Queen, "that the Centennial of our Confederation will be a symbol of hope to the world." To fully succeed, it must manifest an effective understanding, freely entered into, will be an expression of our country's maturity."

As she finished her speech in the Quebec Legislature the Queen said, "This country is the meeting place of two great civilizations, each contributing its own genius and quality. These qualities are not contradictory, but complementary to one another. The full expression and progress of the nation can only be realized by the continued co-operation of all sections of the community." The Queen's words present an invitation to all Canadians to meet the challenge of our times. If we are faithful to the message of our Queen we will achieve greatness as a nation. If we founder on the words of bigotry and narrowness we will fall the challenge given to us by the "Fathers of Confederation."

As the Queen said, "Let the dialogue continue."

 on parade, they might lose the use of the Legion.

Ewart Jones, Secretary Manager of the Legion, said that the flag issue didn't even enter into the discussion as to whether the band should be permitted to practice at the Legion Hall.
 He said he wrote earlier to M.J. Cunningham of the Kavaliers, a few days ago, explaining that there would be a few Sundays on which the hall would be required for Legion use but the band would be free to use it all the other Sundays.

When asked what the Legion position would be if the band again carried the three Maple Leaf flag, Mr. Jones replied, "from a personal point of view, I would look the door."

Mr. Grenville Webster, brother of the bride, was the bestman. The ushers were Mr.
 Joe Tamlin, brother of the groom and Mr. Rod Nicholson.
 Master Gerry Tamlin, nephew of the groom, was the ring bearer.

For the reception in the church hall, the bride's mother received, wearing a three piece turquoise blue suit of brocade and she wore with white accessories and a corsage of pink carnations. The groom's mother assisted wearing a beige linen two piece ensemble with brown accessories and a corsage of pink carnations.

For their honeymoon trip to Cape Cod the bride wore a brown two piece wool suit with tangerine accessories.

They will be residing at 4250 Edgemoor Ave. W., Toronto, Ontario.

Trenton, N.J., (UPI)—The
 New Jersey State Supreme Court refused on Monday to accept John C. Chapman's statement of how he came to be interded behind the wheel of his parked car with the motor turned off.

The court, upholding Chapman's drunk driving conviction rejected as "quite incredible" his explanation that he had just narrowly escaped an accident in Summit, N.J., and was so unsteady he stopped to consume some liquor from a bottle that somehow disappeared.

HALLOWEEN HONEY APPLES AND OTHER GOODIES

This Halloween, when the small fry come to call, why not forget about store-bought sweets and give them home-made honey treats instead?

Your children will be helping you make honey treat for making honey can apples and popcorn or puffed wheat balls, as well as honeyed orange strips, above to absorb moisture.

which are greatly mixed with nuts and raisins. Other mothers are sure to welcome the new trend in treats, and who knows, maybe next year your own brood's Halloween baskets will be filled with better goodies, too!

One thing you might keep in mind is that bright days are helping you make honey treat for making honey can apples and popcorn or puffed wheat balls, as well as honeyed orange strips, above to absorb moisture.

HONEY APPLES

1/4 cup honey, 1/4 cup white sugar, 1/4 cup water, 1/4 teaspoon cream of tartar, Red food coloring, if desired. Apple, with wooden skewers for handles.

Stir honey and sugar into water and heat to dissolve. Add cream of tartar and vanilla while it is boiling. Watch that it does not boil over. Boil to 230°F. on candy thermometer, or until the syrup forms a brittle, string thread when dropped into cold water. Remove syrup from heat, strain, and dip apples in one at a time, twisting to coat with syrup. Place apples on a buttered plate or on waxed paper to cool and harden.

POPCORN OR PUFFED WHEAT BALLS

1/4 cup honey, 1/4 cup white sugar, 1/4 cup water, 1/4 teaspoon cream of tartar, 1/4 cup butter, 1 teaspoon vanilla. Melt butter, add honey and sugar. Stir in cream of tartar, 1/4 cup water, 1/4 cup white sugar, 1/4 cup water, 1/4 teaspoon cream of tartar, 1/4 cup butter, 1 teaspoon vanilla. Melt butter, add honey and sugar. Stir in cream of tartar, 1/4 cup water, 1/4 cup white sugar, 1/4 cup water, 1/4 teaspoon cream of tartar, 1/4 cup butter, 1 teaspoon vanilla.

Stir honey and sugar into water and heat to dissolve. Add cream of tartar, butter, vanilla and coloring. Boil to 250 to 255°F. on candy thermometer, or until syrup forms a hard ball when dropped into cold water.

Pour syrup over popcorn or puffed wheat and stir with a fork to coat pieces. When it is cool enough to handle, ball your hands and shape into balls a dozen or more, depending on the size.

HONEY ORANGE STRIPS

6 large or 8 small oranges, 1/4 teaspoon salt, 1/4 cup white sugar, 1/4 cup honey, 1/4 cup water.

Peel oranges and remove excess white. Cover peel with water, add salt and simmer 1/2 hour. Drain. Cover again with water and simmer until tender. Drain and cut peel into strips.

Mix sugar, honey and water and bring to boil. Add peel and cook slowly, stirring occasionally, until most of the syrup is absorbed and peel is clear. Drain on a rack roll each piece in sugar and set aside to crystallize.

"Aware of the tremendous odds, a sensible parent accepts a 'no-win' policy in a power struggle with a child, dear!"

World news today

Ottawa — Another debate opens in the Commons today on interin supply.

The government is looking for speeding money to come over November and December. The surprise move may force a showdown on the controversial flag issue.

The flag committee brings down its recommendations October 29th.

In bringing down interin supply, the Liberals last night handed the opposition a most effective weapon to stave out the government if the first problem comes to a head.

Terry Leary John Diefenbaker — in a valid threat — indicated this week the opposition may attempt to stall government business.

Moscow — The world communist leadership may convene in Moscow early next month to discuss the fall from power of Russia's Nikita Khrushchev. Diplomatic sources in London say Communist parties from Western nations, as well as Communist nations, will be represented.

Vatican — The Vatican Council has announced it will end its session next month on the 21st and Pope Paul will decide later on the date for the next session. The council today gave its preliminary approval to a discussion of many issues — including birth control.

Tokyo — A member of Hungary's Olympic team has left Tokyo for Asylum in the U.S. along with two other Hungarians. The three defected to the American Embassy in Tokyo. Reliable sources say the Athlete was a member of Hungary's canoeing team.

Ottawa Canada's Emergency measures organization will in all likelihood be the subject of a provincial-federal conference. In mid-February industry minister C.M. Drury said he wants to get together to give close scrutiny to the E.M.O. He said a complete review of Civil Defense is needed.

Rome — In Rome, a newspaper (Il Messaggero) says the Russians may send a delegate to Red China to seek a settlement of their quarrel. The newspaper quotes diplomats in Moscow as saying Russia will send its top thinker on Communist Doctrine, Mikhail Suslov (Oik-high Suba lah) to Peking.

Moscow — Reliable witnesses say they have seen Nikita Khrushchev during the week. Some said they saw him riding in a car near the Moscow University. Others say they saw the former Premier strolling in the grounds of the university.

Mrs. P. Preston, the president, opened the meeting with a reading followed by a hymn and prayer.

The Bible lesson was read by Mrs. M. Endicott who also read the minutes of the previous meeting.

Mrs. C. McNevin gave the treasurer's report and Mrs. H. Taylor reported on cards sent the sick and bereaved.

Mrs. M. Gordon and Mrs. J. Turnbull were appointed to the executive committee.

Discussion followed on routine business and arrangements made to do some quilts.

Mrs. P. Hall, Mrs. P. Preston and Mrs. G. Lawrence will each arrange one quilting.

A "white elephant" auction sale was then conducted by Mrs. G. Lawrence.

Lunch was served by Mrs. C. McNevin and Mrs. P. Preston and the ladies enjoyed a social half hour together.

Film to be shown at supper meeting

Behold the Maples

All hail ye friends from lands afar,
 Behold the maple trees.
 With sturdy trunks and shapely tops:
 And emblematic leaves.
 We bid you see such bright appraisal,
 Dame Nature changed their garb.
 From motified green, to varied tints,
 Mere hands could not retard.

Dame Nature blends green, red and gold,
 Burnt orange with crimson too —
 And every hour grows brighter still;
 That flaming autumn 'mong the leaves
 Arrests the writer's pen,
 The artist's brush can neither sweep
 These gorgeous gifts to mine.

Former Fenelon Falls woman, accident victim at Exeter

Fenelon Falls (PNS) — Mrs. Elmer Larone, 56, formerly Nora Jackett of Fenelon Falls and Mrs. Velma Talbot of Seaford, were killed in a two-car accident at Exeter on Monday, October 19th. Mrs. Talbot's fourteen-year-old daughter suffered a chipped shoulder and Mary Gardiner of London had head injuries and shock.

Police said a car driven by Mrs. Larone was apparently stopped crosswise on the road when a car driven by Mr. Gardiner struck it broadside. Many relatives from here attended the funeral service at Seaford on Thursday, October 22nd. Sincere sympathy is extended to the Jackett family in their sudden sad bereavement.

Driver's duty to watch cars ahead — magistrate

Lorne M. Beare, 40, of Uxbridge was fined $20 and $27 costs in Lindsay Police Court today or 10 days for careless driving.

Magistrate Ian Munro said he knew it was difficult to estimate the speed of a vehicle at night but, he told the accused, it is the duty of a driver to watch the car ahead.

Crown Attorney Lorne Jordan said, "It is quite obvious he was driving without the proper attention."

A witness, Frank Johnson, said he was proceeding south on Highway 121, south of Fenelon Falls at 7:15 p.m., he slowed and stopped his vehicle to make a left turn into his driveway after having put on his signal lights about 100 feet before reaching the drive. He said he was waiting for a north-bound car to pass when his vehicle was struck in the rear.

The accused said he thought the car ahead was moving but when he got within two car-lengths of the car ahead, he found it was stopped and saw an oncoming car. The accused said he didn't see any signal lights.

R. A. (Short) Wainman was president of the Lindsay Kiwanis Club in 1949 when he inaugurated the idea of presenting the "rose of the month" to the Kiwanian having rendered the best service during each month of the year. On Tuesday, October 26th, the past president renewed acquaintances at the Club luncheon to celebrate his birthday. Once again he introduced the "rose of the month" and made the presentation to Lawson and Don Blakely for their very fine effort in leading all members of the Club in the sale of tickets for the Kiwanis show "Good News".

While Bert Wainman was president of the Club he had the distinction of having the largest inter-club record of any club in Kiwanis International. The Lindsay Club in that year travelled by chartered bus and dined with clubs at Albany, New York City, N.Y. and Orange N.J.

Port of Vancouver - Leader in Pacific Trade

Giant of Ocean Commerce

In Vancouver—busiest port on the eastern rim of the Pacific—business is booming. The world's number one wheat port, Canada's western gateway to the Orient and far corners of the earth is also a broad funnel for a mighty stream of varied products for export. Posh from Saskatchewan, lumber from the home province, British Columbia, chemicals and coal from Alberta—even goods from far-away Ontario flood through her smoothly-running ports. The largest city of a province that does more business with the world at large than it does with the rest of Canada, Vancouver, British Columbia, is also the natural shipping centre for the trading products of half of Canada. With 17,000,000 tons of cargo passing annually through this vigorous ocean terminal, Vancouver is far away the biggest deep-sea, dry-cargo port on the North and South American Pacific coast—and growing.

Control station, above, set fair and square in lofty central position on Lion's Gate Bridge across Burrard Inlet, has overall view of marine traffic.

Facility No. 2 of the Vancouver fire department has capacity to pump 15,000 gallons per minute—equivalent of 10 fire pumps. Harbor receives more than 30,000 vessels annually.

Sawn lumber is loaded aboard freighter. Over a million tons of planks, boards, flooring and square timber is shipped from Vancouver annually.

"Faith" theme of U.C.W. meeting

Cambray (PNS) - The Unit- ed Church Women held their regular meeting in the basement of St. Paul's church with an attendance of 14.

Meeting was opened by the president Mrs. Maurice Thompson with a hymn and prayer. Minutes of the last meeting were read by the secretary Mrs. Linden Sinclair and approved. The president welcomed the members and the standing committees reported as follows: Mrs. Mark Gordon for the sick and shut-in. Treasurers report was given by Mrs. Victor Bailey followed by roll call and offering received and dedicated.

The thanksgiving is to be in November owing to the bazaar in October. Mrs. Arthur Tamblyn and Mrs. Lila Parsons were appointed to approach Mr. Charles Worley about painting church steps and Mrs. Arthur Shier, Mrs. Elvira Weber and Mrs. Victor Bailey about minor repairs to the church.

Securing subscriptions for the observance was discussed. The meeting was turned over to the Worship Service, convened by Mrs. Sam Gerrill with a quotation followed by a hymn and prayer. Scripture was read by Mrs. Linden Sinclair with prayer about "What is happening to your faith?" Mrs. Victor Bailey read a passage of scripture "How Abide Faith" and Mrs. Arthur Tamblyn "Without Faith it is impossible to please Him." A prayer was said and Mrs. Gerrill closed the meeting with a benediction.

Social time was spent over lunch.

THERE ARE HOBBYISTS IN THE FOLD

The old-fashioned art of paper-folding, which many people will remember from kindergarten days, has had a renaissance.

It has captured the attention of hobbyists everywhere.

An original paper-folding is a national art in Japan, where it has been practiced for centuries.

It is recognized as an important part of the Japanese culture.

Visitors from the West have noted with amazement how Japanese youngsters can create intricate and beautiful figures.

These figures, which are origami

Mr. and Mrs. Patrick McGillen

St. Patrick's Catholic Church, in Kinnouart was the scene for the wedding of Frances Allen, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James C. Allen to Patrick McGillen, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles McGillen, on Saturday, October 10, 1964.

The wedding was solemnized by Rev. Charles Kay. The bride wore a gown of tulle over silk tulle, designed with a bouquet and a train. The bride's shoes were from crinolines. The bride wore a semi-scoop neckline and long pointed sleeves, came to a vee at the waist. Appliques of Guipure lace trimmed the neckline and the front of the skirt. Two large cabbage roses of matching material accented the back waist. Her pearl and rhinestone tiara held a nylon-terra fingertip veil. Her bouquet was of red roses and mums.

The maid-of-honour was Joan McGillen, a sister of the groom, and the bridesmaids were Rosemarie Allen, sister of the bride and Peggy MacIsaac, a cousin of the bride. They were identically dressed in red velvet in the Princess Line style. They carried bouquets of white mums.

The best man was Robert Fleming and the ushers were William Ayotte and Paul Allen.

For the reception at the Canadian Legion the bride's mother, seated in a pale mauve lace sheath with beige accessories. The groom's mother seated in a slim sheath with matching jacket of imported lace in a champagne tone.

For their honeymoon to Washington, D.C., the bride chose a turquoise wool suit with a matching hat.

Out-of-town guests were from Peterborough, Sudbury, Toronto and Ottawa.

HOLLYWOOD (By United Press International)

Hollywood (UPI)—Ktner Dulles, an actor who works in this country and abroad, says many American performers have become vagabonds in Europe, wandering across the continent searching for bit parts.

It's as if they were a case of failure, actors who couldn't make the grade in this country. They fled to Europe seeking stardom there. For some, it works, but not often. Others become imports there in European films that are never seen in the United States. Still others are never heard of again in the film industry here.

They form a mixed group, says Dulles, who describes the situation as one of sadness and lost hopes.

"A lot of them become alcoholics, or are already," he said. "It's a cross section of people. You might find the young college kid who's been through an experience. Then there's the old man who used to be something else, never an actor. And there's the middle group which thinks it might be heading somewhere. Those people had some acting lessons here and heard there were jobs in Europe."

Dulles estimates that hundreds of Americans also end a living abroad as acting vagabonds. "They live from day to day," he said. "If that's what you want I'm not knocking it, but for an actor who wants a serious career, that's wrong. It becomes a way of life. And you have no responsibility, even to yourself. Your colleagues are not there to judge you. I think it's sad."

Dulles, who came to the attention of movie fans in "David and Lisa", recently completed a film in Europe, "The Thin Red Line."

He has made other films in Europe, but always with the understanding that his roles would help his American career.

"I'm not a runaway actor," he said. "I want to Europe so I could return to America and be seen in a broader fashion." Dulles made that remark in reference to what he feels is the type casting of his talents in this country.

Some producers, he said, "see me as a fellow who tends to play an overly tense young man with an emotional problem."

Nobody wants to continually play such characters. So Dulles went abroad to seek other roles.

"I remained independent," he said. "I'm not against Hollywood. I might be a rebel from within, but not from without."

Dulles realizes he must act his way out of the type casting which finds him playing neurotics. "I was just criticizing conditions that exist anywhere in the world where there are actors," he said. "You are remembered for your first major role. The good actors get by."

Realizing that, Dulles is over the first hurdle.

Peel apples, quarter and remove cores. Arrange apple quarters compactly in the pastry-lined pan; they should be slightly heaped toward the center. Sprinkle cinnamon and sugar mixture over apples. Then cover with Strussel Topping:

1½ cup flour 1½ cup light brown sugar ¼ cup Schneiders Butter. Stir ½ cup light brown sugar into 1½ cup flour. Cream ¼ cup butter until smooth and soft; then work in the flour and sugar mixture until well blended. Sprinkle this crumbly mixture over the top of the pie.

NOW...put your pie into a heavy brown paper bag and fold the end of the bag several times to seal. Place in a 450° oven, for about 15 minutes. Then reduce heat to 325°. For another 20 minutes of baking. Don't open! At the end of the hour's baking time, your Crispy Flake pie will come out of the bag golden brown and delicious. Set it cooling for at least another hour before serving.

Council ask D.O.H. for payment

A resolution read at council meeting Monday night authorized and directed Mayor Holton and clerk-treasurer W.B. Bates to petition the Department of Highways for an interim payment in the amount of $70,485.00. This is an application for money already spent, said the clerk.

W.B. Bates was authorized last night by Lindsay town council to advertise an adjudicated tax sale if the tax sale of November 3rd did not succeed in disposing of all property. The clerk was also given authority to bid in properties at the adjudicated sale at the amount of tax arrears plus cost. In this way, pointed out finance chairman Russell Taylor, the municipality may protect its interests. Council was reminded that property thus purchased by the town could be redeemed within a year and a day by the owner, the same as applies to private purchases.

Council discuss education costs

Correspondence was read at Lindsay Town Council Monday night from the town of Trenton, Ontario, suggesting that towns join together in asking the Province to assume a larger percentage of education costs. Requirement for school financing in Ontario now precludes any other development, the letter said. The town of Trenton suggested that a question be put on the forthcoming ballot asking for an expression of the people in regard to having the province make a special levy to pay for education, rather than having 45% of taxes allotted to education.

Speaking on the subject, councillor Russell Taylor said that since a small percentage of voters are taxpayers, others might not be sufficiently concerned to vote as long as their children were receiving an education. Mayor Holton reported that the Mayors and Reeves convention had asked the province to assume 60% of education costs to little avail. A vote of this nature will give Trenton something to back their demands at the next conference, Mayor Holton stated.

"BARGAINS COST MONEY" SOMETIMES ONE'S HEALTH. Some of the most common reasons for illness are poor diet, lack of exercise, and stress. These factors can lead to a variety of health problems, including heart disease, diabetes, and high blood pressure. It is important to take control of your health by making healthy choices. Eating a balanced diet, getting regular exercise, and managing stress are key to maintaining good health. Don't let the lure of cheap deals lead you down a path of poor health. Invest in your well-being by choosing quality over quantity.

...and it's not just the price that counts. The quality of the food you eat is just as important. Cheap food often means less nutritious food, which can lead to health problems. When you buy in bulk, you often get more for your money, but you also get more of the same thing. This can lead to a lack of variety in your diet, which is not good for your health. Instead, try to buy a variety of fresh fruits and vegetables. These foods are not only healthy but also delicious. They can help you feel better and live longer.

STOP!... killing yourself

By Peter J. Steinerich, M.D., F.A.C.P.

INTENSE FEAR OF CATS MAKES LADY MISERABLE

Lives there a person who isn't afraid of something? Big game? Little? Scarred of an elephant or of a mouse? Fear of some of being smothered or falling from a height? Silly fears of apparently rational fears find their way into the subconscious of every human being. Recognize it or not, undoubtedly it's there.

For some of us, our fears stand out like the proverbial thumb. The fear stands and throws us into a tizzy of emotional upheaval. For example, consider this letter received a few days ago.

The fearful lady is dreadfully upset by cats. A friend told me I was as white as a sheet when it happened. I have a sister who is even worse than I am, for she won't go through standing, good neighbors, with cats. As a physician, I know I am sure you, Mrs. D. deserve cat rubbed up against her leg, although she says she isn't looking for any. As a physician, I can tell you that I've seen scores of patients like Mrs. D. and they are to be pitied because of their irrational fears. They suffer horribly from these uncontrolled fears. I recall one patient who told me she had, at last, found what she considered her dream house. Her husband was just writing out the down payment when she wandered out on the porch. She screamed and passed out. When she awoke she explained that she saw a spider weaving a web over the door. Being a sufferer from the phobia known as "arachnophobia" (fear of spiders) she couldn't possibly live there. Her husband tore her fear. Perhaps not, it's worth the try. Meanwhile, friends and relatives, don't underestimate Mrs. D.'s anxieties. She's really scared.

RECTOR BREZNEV

St. Andrews, Scotland (UPI)

A group of students at St. Andrews University have invited a new Soviet Communist Party Chief Leonid Brezhnev to accept nomination in the school's rectorial election. Nominations close Friday, and written permission must be received from any nominee. There has been no word from Brezhnev.

STOP!... killing yourself

WOMAN WITH LARGE BUTS THINKS IT TAXES HEART

Special problem, special treatment. Whenever any patient is faced with unusual obstacles to improvement, I believe that we doctors should not hesitate to use whatever treatment may bring relief. For example, consider how pendulous breasts are affecting the writer of the following letter:

Dear Dr. Steinhorn: I can't recall ever seeing in your column a problem similar to my own. At first glance, many would hardly think of it as a serious one, but it is to me. I am five feet two inches, and of slender frame, 56 years old, small legs, feet and feet, 128 pounds. But I am almost twice that weight down with a huge butt 36 to 39 inches from my round shoulders which can barely support the size of them. I am exhausted all the time and I am a surgeon. In view of the have paid fantastic figures for bras. Even have bought false breasts. Often I just cannot at the availability of plastic surgery to get these breasts removed to remove excess weight. I will wear a jockey.

How about it? Don't procrastinate. I think he'll go along with you at least as far as having a consultation about it. There have been some excellent results with this type of surgery just for cosmetic reasons. In your case, there's a more important reason: conserving the strength of your heart.

Dear Dr. Steinhorn: I have heard that when a bull gets mad his horns get almost red hot. They say that it's this heat and the germs on the horns tips that are the reason that matadors sometimes die from their wounds. Is it true that the horns get so hot when the bull is enraged?—Master A., aged 10

Comment: I think it's an accepted fact that the matador's injuries are due to the piercing action of the horns, respectively of their temperature. It's the hemorrhage or injury to a vital organ that causes the trouble. I don't suppose any germs help much, but this is one scientific error. He did not relish per-

Hard to Reach?

How do you get a doctor in an emergency? — a coroner's jury asked on Wednesday in Toronto, and the answer was that some responsible authority find the answer.

The coroner's jury also recommended an investigation into the effectiveness of doctors' informal stand-by arrangements, doctors' answering services and the role of police, fire departments and public hospitals.

The jury was inquiring into the death of a 74-year-old woman and a number of the difficulties the woman's family had in getting a doctor, and their failure to get the hospital to admit her because of an emergency department page article in "The Post" on September 11, July asking "Are Lindsay Doctors Providing Adequate Service?" caused a lot of comment from both readers and doctors. Some doctors stated "The Post" circulation was the difficulty in obtaining a doctor when an emergency was all too frequent, was untrue and exaggerated. Since then, there have been a number of other cases where Lindsay doctors were unable to go out to calls, or a doctor couldn't be found.

It should be noted in the system advertisement.

FATHER REMEMBERS WHEN

House razed
An early morning blaze completely destroyed the frame home occupied by Mr. and Mrs. Archie Detman yesterday. Mrs. Detman had built a fire in the stove and had gone out to a telephone for milk and had taken her infant with her. The other two little children were sleeping. The fire quickly consumed everything and was so intense that the fire had spread so rapidly that the smoke was so dense that only a few articles of clothing were saved. The house was without a fire escape, so the family had to wait for the fire to reach the roof to protect nearby buildings. Fortunately, the wind was not high at the time.

W. Detman was not in the village at the time and it is not known whether the house was insured.

Raid made
Provincial and Mounted Police raided the home of a local officer and discovered a quantity of home-brewed whiskey. The police officers took possession of several bottles and arrested the owner of the house. The arrested man was released on bail and remanded until Monday when he will appear before Magistrate C. P. Rick.

Broken head
At Sturgeon Lake, Mrs. W. A. Poff observed what she described as a "big snake" on the shore of the lake. She saw it in the water and it was about 10 feet long. It was a large snake, possibly a water snake, and it was very dangerous.

Tonic for old hunters

To every hunter comes a season of discontent, usually marked by frayed temples and aching joints, when recollection is more pleasant than planning.

Behind him, the past falls away downhill—a burbling torrent of memories filled with rich adventures and the great dogs of yesterday. Ahead, the horizon is gray, clouded with rain and doubt, with no good dogs in sight.

Hunting is no longer an elusive sweetheart, but a comfortable, well-loved wife. The ancient courtesy of aro, old hat at all but as young as the eyes that behold them. Your ancient field habits and trunks take on new dimensions—and Hoppe's No. 9 begins to smell sweeter than ever.

The old may even teach you to play again. Oh, you'll find it for a while—standing by gruff and gravel-haired while the boy mopes with the dog or wears empty shotgun shells on his fingers or plays numphead during the lunch break. But in the end, you'll learn. After all, what's the difference between man and boy but the price of their toys?

What's more, you'll learn something about the boy. There is no better place to talk to him than in the field. For one thing, there's more time and opportunity: you have him to yourself. For another, he has shed certain restraints. He regards himself not as a junior, but as a junior partner, and confides in you as a partner should.

And if you hunt long enough with the boy, you will change. Some of his good habits rub off on you, and some of your old ones on him. Each is shared, and each is the better for it. But watch out: he will learn faster from you than you from him, and the day may come when you are of equal ability. Then, inevitably, will come that blissful time when you know that the boy has learned all he can from you and has gone beyond, and has become the better hunter.

When that day comes, as it must to old hunters, only one course of action remains. Start all over again, with your grandson.

Reboro man fined $50, costs losses licence for six months

A Reboro district man, George Miller, 25, was fined $50 and costs and his licence was suspended for six months for driving in a car for a period of six months by Magistrate Leo Munro in the Lindsay Police Court Thursday.

John Miller was convicted on a charge of careless driving as a result of a motor vehicle accident on Saturday afternoon August 8th about 5:00 p.m. when the car he was driving flipped over in a ditch about a mile south-east of Reboro on Highway No. 7, Miller spent seven weeks in hospital after the car was destroyed by fire that broke out following the crash.

Harvey Porter of Scarborough said there was no car in sight told the court of proceeding ahead of them and they had long Highway 7 toward Peterborough on the day in question following a large van and two cars. He said he saw the car later identified as being driven by the accused pull up close behind him, drop back and pull sharply to the right. Porter said the car he saw was the accused round to pass, but that the accused, in passing, swung towards his car and he saw the car back up and pull into the line ahead of him. Porter said an intersection to allow the accused to pass. He said that as he approached a curve a northbound car suddenly pulled off on the east shoulder and commenced backing up. Porter told the court of then rounding the curve and seeing the accused's car in the east ditch. He said the car seemed to be on fire and the accused was lying with his feet in the car and his body on the ground beside the car. He said he parked his car in a safe place and returned to the scene and helped move the unconscious driver away from the burning car and assisted in directing traffic.

Ray McCallum of Peterborough was northbound on Highway 7 in the vicinity of the accident and told the court of meeting two cars as he approached the knoll near the accident scene.

He said that a third car was approaching him straddling the centre line, and had braked and pulled back in line suddenly. He said he was passing the car when he saw the car was the accused's car. He said he saw the car was the accused's car. He said he saw the car was the accused's car.

Mr. and Mrs. James Penfold said the court that they were returning to the scene after the accident. Both Mr. and Mrs. Penfold said that they saw the car was the accused's car. He said he saw the car was the accused's car.

Provincial Court. Lyle Weston told the court of investigation into the accident. He said he saw the car was the accused's car. He said he saw the car was the accused's car.

He said he saw the car was the accused's car. He said he saw the car was the accused's car. He said he saw the car was the accused's car.

He said he saw the car was the accused's car. He said he saw the car was the accused's car. He said he saw the car was the accused's car.

Magistrate Munro in registering a conviction said "on the evidence of his erratic driving I am satisfied he was driving without due care and attention for the safety of others". After the court was told of previous convictions for speeding and driver's license suspensions the Magistrate concluded "The accused is not a reliable man behind the wheel of a car". Costs totalled $74 for witness fees and mileage.

SWEEP

Highly polished forty-pound curling granites were introduced for the opening of the season at the Peel street curling rink on Thursday night. The rink was as "pretty as a picture". The six sheets of artificial ice looked good and the rinks have been painted in bright colours and the illumination is excellent.

It was instruction night for beginners and any others who wished to test the flexibility of muscles. A large number of first nighters were on hand and the women members predominating. President Don Ferguson opened proceedings in the upper room and introduced Joe Morrow who handed the movie. Two fine educational curling films were presented the first showing the highlights of the 1962 McDonald Brier Dominion championships and the second a film the magic art of curling. A number of men instructors were on hand to teach novices some of the fine arts of the game; the proper stance at the hack; how to take hold of the rock handle for the out and in turn, how to leave the back and how to follow through with the slide (short or long); how to sweep and the style of footwork; how to hold the broom, how at all times when at the hack and when delivering the stone to never waver when watching and looking for the skip for instruction, etc. The film helped a lot by explaining and illustrating the turns, in and out wicks, placing guards, drawing through ports and the most difficult of all shots, the freeze to the stone.

It was the largest attended and one of the best nights of instruction in years.

OVERPAID

Clay Cross, England (UPI)—Schoolmaster John Smith said he had been asked to repay $557 by the County Education Authority.

The Authority said he had been overpaid each week for 39 months.

GIRLS UNIT

Cambridge, England (UPI)—The commanding officer of the local sea cadet corps offered a unit for girls after discovering the male cadets would rather date girls than attend meetings.

Moscow (UPI)—The Kremlin's rulers have launched a new attack on Nikita Khrush-

The new attack came after

Communist sources disclosed that Defense Minister Rodion

The Soviet Union's authoritative accused Khrushchev without mentioning him by name of

In a pre-publication survey carried a long line of "sins" that it said were "alien" to Soviet life. The "sins" included: "immature conclusions, hasty decision and actions diversor from reality, thoughtless and empty phrase-mongering.

In addition to administrative downs, pupils from school into account the fact that he had been a Communist and practical experience.

The magazine added that
